Affirmative action resolution passed

The Seaside City Council has adopted, with the negative votes of two councilmen, a watered-down resolution declaring the city's intent to comply with affirmative action goals.

The council split over whether there was an obligation for the city to adopt a separate affirmative action plan, or whether current and past city policies complying with the goals of affirmative action plans sufficed to meet the spirit, as well as the letter, of laws against discriminatory personnel practices.

Voting against the resolution which merely affirms present city policies as meeting the intent of the law were Councilmen Steve Ross and Oscar Lawson. Mayor B.J. Dolan, and Councilmen Glenn Olea and Joe Cota voted in favor of the resolution.

Councilman Steve Ross, who originally proposed that the city adopt a separate affirmative action plan and eventually hire an affirmative action officer for the city, had requested consideration of the proposal at last week's meeting, after it had been turned down at a previous council meeting in August.

The Rev. J.S. Belcher of Hayes C.M.E. Church in Seaside called upon the council to adopt an affirmative action program.

"We believe the city government has a responsibility to deal fairly in all areas," he said. "We urge you to adopt the affirmative action plan as submitted to you."

The resolution notes the fact that the city has "enthusiastically complied" with federal laws prohibiting discrimination, and that the city manager has "diligently and consistently enforced" city policies providing for equal employment and non-discrimination.

The resolution also notes that the city council has "vigorously encouraged contractors working on city projects to adhere to these policies," and "reaffirms" the support of the city council for these philosophies and policies.

The intent of Councilman Steve Ross's original proposal was to set up a completely separate affirmative action program, attached to the city, with a separate administrative officer to enforce its compliance. Currently, there is no such separate program, and the goals of affirmative action are administered through existing city staff members.

The city council also granted a 120-day period of time to Charles Marlar of 1188 Hilby Ave. to comply with city code on parking unregistered or non-operative vehicles on the front or side yard of residential property, and to clean up the property to meet city code on litter and trash.

Mrs. Bettie Henderson of 1179 Fargo Court complained to the council at its first meeting in October of the presence of a number of vehicles on the adjacent Marlar property, as well as of the related problems of litter, insects, and other accumulated junk.

City Mgr. Carey Royster informed the council there might be a violation of city code on the storage of abandoned vehicles on residential property.

"I do not think that the storage of vehicles and junk constitutes a violation of the law," Royster said. "This doesn't constitute a public nuisance. But city ordinances do prohibit the storage of disabled vehicles in front or side yards."

Mayor B.J. Dolan said he had visited the property and observed it, noting that there were "several vehicles there which were not collector's items and which are not registered or operable."

"We have gone to considerable expense to improve our properties here in the city, spending almost three-quarters of a million dollars to clear out the auto junkyards on Del Monte. Some action is clearly necessary on those cars which are clearly junk and not collector's items."

"The only violation I can see is keeping a number of vehicles in the R-2 zone," said Councilman Joe Cota. "This is the only thing we make a judgement on."

But Cota added: "I would hesitate to make a judgement here, unless we did the same thing all over town. I suggest he line them (cars) up and then cover them, and put a gate up in the driveway."

Councilman Oscar Lawson recommended that the council do nothing about the matter, and said it should be dealt with through civil redress channels. Lawson said the matter was an instance where government had intruded too far into private affairs of citizens.

The city council, after lengthy discussion, voted unanimously to grant a variance to

Marina residents vote to incorporate

After 14 years of hard work and three defeats, Marina residents have finally voted to incorporate.

Unofficial election returns from the Monterey County Elections Department following last week's incorporation election gave the tally as 1,307 "yes" votes to 842 "no" votes. Approximately 60 per cent of those voting opted for incorporation, and about 40 per cent opposed the idea.

The number of registered voters in the city of some 20,000 is 3,097 persons. At the same time, voters selected a five-man city council from a field of 18 candidates to steer the infant city in its first steps toward independence.

Top vote-getter was Florist Frank Vinyard, who gathered 951 votes to gain a seat on the council. Second vote-getter was Sandra Skeen, a housewife, who got 807 votes; social service worker Paul Davis got 746 votes; county employee Robert Ouyé garnered 720 votes; and contractor Stanley Sells 676 votes to become the city's first council.

The county elections department must make an official count of the voters and certify the results to the Secretary of State's Office, which should take another week or so, before Marina has full authority to conduct its own affairs.

Marina now becomes, with an area of some 9.6 square miles, the third largest city on the Monterey Peninsula; Seaside is largest, Monterey second largest. Incorporation has been an issue in Marina since at least 1961, when the first incorporation drive was launched. That effort, as well as others in 1964 and 1972, failed to gather enough voter support to effect incorporation. Voter turnout was estimated in last week's election as high as 70 per cent.

One of the chief driving forces behind this successful attempt to incorporate was the issue of local control. The Marina Incorporation Drive, which spearheaded the movement, hammered away at the theme of not having Marina's destiny controlled by county supervisors—none of whom live in Marina.

Another central focus of incorporation efforts was the desire on the part of residents to control and direct growth within their city. Backers of incorporation indicated that a first priority for the new city will be to establish some sort of long-range policy on planning and control of growth and development. Initially funding for the infant municipality is in the form of some $360,000 in state revenue checks, which the council will use to hire a city attorney and city manager to help get the city on the path to local government.

County services will continue until June 30, 1976, since those services already have been paid for by Marina residents through taxes. The period between the successful election and the end of the fiscal year will be one of intensive organization and planning to set up city services and staff.

The newly-incorporated city includes a large portion of Fort Ord and the population of the base, which will benefit the city in computations of state rebate checks, which should amount to at least half of the city's $1.3 million projected budget. The current county tax rate of $10.13 to $10.55 per $100 probably would not be exceeded by the new Marina Tax rate, and the city expects to be able to provide initial police and government services.

In its first official meeting last Wednesday following the incorporation vote, the Marina City Council elected Vinyard as mayor, and Mrs. Skeen as mayor pro tem. The next city council meeting is to be held at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 19 at the Marina Community Center.

Tentative council meetings have been set for the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

Child abuse council aims growing problem

Drenched as they are in romanticized notions of having children and being parents, Americans are often ill-prepared for the reality of crying babies, night time feedings, wet diapers, and incessant demands from children.

The result, unfortunately, is that too often parents become abusive toward their children. The abuse might take the form of physical beatings or too stern punishment, or the less tangible form of emotional or physical neglect.

And, when parents are distressed, economically or emotionally, sometimes the child become a convenient scapegoat for the parents' frustrations. Thus, the cycle of child abuse continues and feeds upon itself.

But now help is on the way—both for the children and for the abusive parents. The Child Abuse Prevention Council of the Monterey Peninsula, funded with a $13,000 grant from county revenue sharing funds, will become the coordinating center for mobilizing community resources to meet the child abuse problem.

The program coordinator is Judy Duff, who has been working with a child care task force for the past six months on the Monterey Peninsula, and who formerly worked to promote the popular "Sesame Street" television program in San Francisco.

The approach to the child abuse program will involve all the available resources of the community, in an educational and preventive effort to break up abuse cycles and to educate parents how to be more effective, loving parents, Ms. Duff said.

"We will act as a resource center, and will try to get other agencies to perform the necessary services," she said. "We will try to raise the level of awareness of the problem."

Ms. Duff said one of the difficulties in tackling the child abuse problem is that traditionally, children have been regarded as the "property" of their parents, and there is a fine line of distinction between the privacy of the family and the rights of children.

While the privacy concept is well established in law and in the foundations of our society, the concept of children's rights—just like women's rights and the rights of minorities—is a relatively new issue and one still evolving, Ms. Duff said.

Certain factors in our family life don't allow us to reach out for help, and people don't have the help in child rearing that they once had from the extended family. The result is that people are left pretty much on their own as parents.

"A lot of young people think they'll get love from their children, and instead they find out that the child is someone who places great demands on them."

Ms. Duff believes the mass media-advertising image of the happy, perfectly harmonious family unit used to sell products is unrealistic and may condition people to expect that parenting is a condition of endless comfort and emotional gratification.

Parents are thus ill-prepared for the realities of their responsibilities, and feel lost when the reality of the situation dawns on them. Without the supports of the extended family system, which can provide parents with emotional escape valves, parents can gradually get into abusive patterns with their children, sometimes through excessive punishment.

One solution to this problem is to offer classes in parenting to students in the public schools, so as to offer a realistic picture of what being a parent entails. Ms. Duff said one of the primary goals of the community child abuse prevention program will be to augment such classes on the Peninsula.

The National Child Abuse Center in Denver estimates that between 5 to 10 per cent of the children in every community in America are subjected to abuse at the hands of their parents, and the American Humane Association says 250,000 children each year are abused.

"Every state has new reporting laws, but we still don't have good statistics on child abuse," Ms. Duff said. "We project that the Peninsula will see more than 100 child abuse cases this year."

There are several factors which the National Child Abuse Center recognizes as causative in the cycle of abuse, including unrealistic expectations of the children by parents, and an attitude of isolation on the part of parents toward seeking outside assistance in dealing with problems.

Another important factor that plays a role in child abuse is low self-esteem on the part of parents, which gets transferred to their children, often through abusive behavior.

Ms. Duff said the abused child becomes aggressive and often violent; abused children very often grow up to abuse their own children. Whereas physical abuse is more prevalent in some areas, the more common type of abuse in this community is emotional abuse and neglect, she indicated.

"Nobody is immune to child

Woman suspended for arm band

An employee of the Monterey Peninsula Herald was suspended Oct. 29 for wearing an armband in support of the national "Women's Strike Day."

Alice Burton, a salesperson in the display advertising department, was ordered to leave the premises when she refused to remove the armband, which bore the slogan, "Alice Doesn't."

The slogan was part of a one-day demonstration by the National Organization for Women to dramatize the importance of women to the national work force by having thousands of symbolic "Alices" throughout the country withhold their labor.

Mrs. Burton elected to work but wore the armband to show her sympathy for the principle of equal opportunity for women.

Early in the afternoon, she was ordered by advertising director Fred Hawes to remove the armband because it was a "political" symbol.

Mrs. Burton refused on grounds that she was entitled to a free expression of her beliefs as long as it didn't interfere with her work. She said she would keep her coat on over the offending armband while she was out making calls on advertisers.

A lake hotel?

(Editorial)

The denial of a motel complex on the ocean front at Seaside by the Coastal Commission doesn't necessarily mean a permanent setback to those anxious to provide jobs and bolster the city's economy.

The Coastal Commission, for a number of reasons, rejected a permit request filed by the Bostland Corp., a subsidiary of the Atlantic Richfield Co., for the 176-unit structure which would have been built on the north side of the present Holiday Inn.

Although spokesmen for the applicant say they will appeal the decision, it is not likely that any type of application will be submitted before next year, if at all. That leaves unanswered the question of how, and when, Seaside will get the major hotel-motel which many would like to see it have.

Councilman Steve Ross suggested several weeks ago an alternative site for such a hotel, at the upper end of Laguna Grande. That location, Ross said, would make sense both from an esthetic, commercial, and traffic point of view. The idea was proposed as an ace in the hole, should the coastal site be rejected.

Now that that location has, indeed, been rejected, it's probably time for the city council, the redevelopment agency, and the planning commission to give some serious thought to the Ross proposal.

The plan, in its rough outline, would involve the creation of a high rise hotel building, with an open-window restaurant built out over the lake, so that visitors and diners would enjoy a unobstructed view of the lake area.

The proposed hotel complex would also enjoy the advantage of being located on Canyon Del Rey, a major traffic artery, and additional underground parking might be provided, Ross pointed out.

In many respects, the Ross plan seems preferable to the ocean front proposal by the Bostland Corp. For one thing, the Laguna Grande hotel concept would strategically locate the would-be hotel closer to the heart of Seaside, and the fallout from the hotel and restaurant business would probably benefit other businesses in Seaside.

For another, the proposal seems esthetically superior, since it would enhance the development of the lake as a recreational and commercial site. Although any consideration for the ocean front has been pre-empted by the Coastal Commission's decision, the plan also would leave the ocean front unobstructed.

There's no need to waste time before giving this plan its proper consideration, especially since it could prove an important contribution to the economic health of Seaside.

What's new at the Seaside

The ethnic collection is one of the more popular areas of the library for adults and young people of Seaside and for those students in the ethnic studies program at Monterey Peninsula College.

The ethnic collection is a separate collection of magazines and books about minorities living in America. Information on Black, Mexican, and Third World people living outside the United States may be found in the regular collection. The reference library will be happy to assist anyone seeking information on ethnic people.

There is one newspaper in the ethnic collection, "Black Times," and seven magazines: "Crisis," published by the NAACP; "Ebony," a popular black peoples' magazine; "Civil Rights Digest," a publication of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, of which the current issue is devoted to job discrimination and affirmative action; "Essence," a publication aimed at black women; and, "Negro American Literature Forum," a magazine which evaluates black literature.

The newest magazine added to the collection is "Negro History Bulletin," which is published by the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History. For the youngsters, there is "Ebony Jr.," located in the children's section. All magazines, except for the most current issue, circulate for one to two weeks. There is also a coin operated photocopy machine available in the library for those who wish to photocopy an article.

There are general books in the ethnic collection on race problems, race and science, race and philosophy, and the history of the civil rights movement. Specific books cover subjects such as the problems of segregation, busing, black people in business, and church developments.

Children and adults will also find many biographies of political leaders, athletes, musicians, and writers. For convenience, there is one section of the library featuring fiction by black authors.

Chinese, Japanese, Mexican-American, and Filipino people will find books on their history and culture in America, too. Those wishing to read books in their native language may request the library to borrow language books from the California State Library in Sacramento. For those who read Spanish, there already is a separate collection of fiction and non-fiction books in Spanish.

For further information, call the Seaside Branch Library at 899-2055 or visit during business hours: Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Friday and Saturday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Show on Africa

Carl Pohlhammer, chairman of the social science division at Monterey Peninsula College, will present a slide show on Africa's game parks Wednesday Nov. 19 at noon in Lecture Forum 101. There is no admission charge and the public is invited.

The slides are a result of a camping safari Pohlhammer took while on sabbatical leave last spring. Pohlhammer was studying East Africa's social, educational and political problems, but included the camping safari which took him through Masai Mara park in Kenya, and Serengeti, Ngorongoro and Lake Manyara in Tanzania.

The instructor said he is restructuring the history course entitled "The African Experience" based on his visit to Africa. The course will be offered in the spring semester as History 149.

Craige to Reorganize Local Demos

Councilman John E. Craige has called for a reorganization of the Seaside Democratic Club.

He wants to disassociate the organization from James Patterson and James Ogle, controversial officials of the club, and has asked that a reorganization meeting be held Monday evening, at the Methodist Church, 4th and Elm Streets.

Fresh from his victory in last week's recall election, Dr. Craige said yesterday that the election results had given him a "clear mandate" to revamp the club.

In a statement to the News-Sentinel, Craige claims that his opposition to the Patterson-Ogle "faction" was the only "real issue" in the recall election.

Craige, who says he is taking the action "as the only duly elected representative of the Democratic Party in Seaside" (he is a member of the County Democratic Central Committee), charges that the Democratic club at present is illegally constituted.

The charge is based on his contention that the club acted illegally in declaring all offices vacant when Marvin Shinn resigned as president last year. Craige says John W. Bean, Jr., then the club's vice president, automatically should have succeeded to the top spot. Craige maintains that "all subsequent actions of these officers were illegal and were not actions of the Seaside Democratic Club and that this group is not entitled to use the name 'Seaside Democratic Club.'"

Subdivision Plan Up To Council Tonight

City Administrator Gordon Howe will present the final map of Ord Terrace subdivision No. 8 to city council tonight.

And if the council okays the plan, some 67 new homes should begin rising out of the sand just east of the new Ord Terrace School, between Pine and Ord Grove Avenues.

Under the law, the builders, Arthur G. Metz, must begin work in the new subdivision within 60 to 90 days after approval of the site plan by the council. The new subdivision will cost more than $500,000.

Election Would Be Held Even If

No Candidates File Petitions

City Attorney Saul M. Weingarten yesterday scotched recent reports that the city council vacancy left by the recall of George D. Pollock might be filled by council appointment rather than by another election.

Weingarten said an election would have to be held—even if no one files for nomination—because the voters must have an opportunity to write in names.

"All the filing of nominating papers does," Weingarten said, "is to assure candidates that their names will be printed on the ballot. But, of course, the voters must also have an opportunity to write in names not appearing on the ballot."

Weingarten's opinion appeared to put a damper on a suggestion, reportedly attributed to real estate man Sam

Thornburg, that the remaining four councilmen could fill the empty seat by appointing a fifth member if prospective candidates refrain from filing nominating papers.

Fire Department Has Two New Men, Dog

Seaside Fire District has (1) a new dog, (2) lots of new equipment, (3) and two new men, one of whom has one (1) new addition to his family.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Vernon Walley of 718½ Elm St. (he's a new fireman; she's just a civilian) became the parents of a son, Randolph Lee, on Monday at Peninsula Community Hospital.

Walley and Gilford D. Truhett have just joined the Seaside Fire Department. They are the two additional men authorized under the current year's budget.

The new dog is a genuine fire department-type dog, a Dalmatian, white with black spots. Normally, fire house dogs are called sparky, but due to circumstances beyond the department's control, this one is called Sparkette.

She is the gift of the Del Rey Pet Shop, is three months old, will move to the fire house later, and is currently eating the Chief William Pachetti family into the poorhouse.

Our New 11-ton Baby Arrives

(Editorial)

We wish to announce, with considerable pride, that beginning with this issue, the News-Sentinel is being printed on a new (well, new to us) and bigger press.

This improvement—marking another milestone in the progress of Seaside's newspaper—has been made possible by our steadily growing number of readers and the increasing circle of advertisers who have shown their confidence in the News-Sentinel.

In return, we hope to provide Seaside with an ever-improving newspaper.

Building Many New Homes In Seaside

Construction in Seaside includes many alterations to dwellings and individual home building now underway.

O.S. Whitney is building a home for $8,000 at 1239 Bayview. O.C. Childress is constructing a dwelling at 927 Echo Way for $7,000. Stanley Gong owns a new home going up at 613 Shafer for $6,000. Builder is Ross Elio.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Thompson are building a two-car garage for $6,000 at 1228 Goodwin Place. Albert Harrison is building a home for $9,000 at 1751 Madson.

Cabrillo Carnival Saturday Evening

Saturday evening from 5:30 to 9 is carnival time at Juan Cabrillo School.

The annual evening of fun, sponsored by the school's Parent Teacher Association, will feature a train ride, free movies, fish pond, fortune telling, country store, post office, cake walk, plants and all sorts of food.

Mrs. Gordon B. Lewis is in charge of the clown booth. Handling the "wild game hunt" will be Mrs. Leo Wojcikowski and Mrs. Clarence Lanib Jr., secretary of the PTA.

Gary Fife for the construction of a commercial structure at 1976 Fremont, thus overturning a decision by the planning commission denying the request.

City Planning Director William Burris said the principal factor in the denial of the use permit was a concern over parking. There was no way, in the schemes for development of the property, that parking requirements could have been met. Burris noted that the property was one of several "problem lots" which have concerned the planning commission and staff.

Architect Wade Reese noted that city parking requirements would have forced the applicant to fill two-thirds of the lot with parking, in order to develop the remaining one-third, and said that constituted a hardship.

The council agreed, and granted the appeal on the basis that parking requirements constituted a hardship, for that specific city lot.

A resolution making Seaside a participating member of the newly-formed Monterey Peninsula Water Management Agency, and ratifying the by-laws of that organization, was passed by the council, as well as a resolution confirming the goals and objectives of the Monterey County Solid Waste Management Plan.

Don Likas was reappointed a member of the planning commission, and Nancy Loper was appointed as a member of the Seaside Art Commission, at the request of Mayor B.J. Dolan.

Theatre programs

The Monterey Peninsula College Film Gallery will present a look at two history-making show-business films Saturday, Nov. 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the MPC Theater.

The Gallery will begin with "42nd Street," the first in a long line of screen musicals touting the "no business like show business" theme, complete with an unknown chorus girl (Ruby Keeler) getting her big break when the star breaks her ankle. Dick Powell makes his film debut and lavish production numbers are done by the famed Busby Berkeley.

On the same bill will be "Goldwyn Follies," described as "The Hollywood super-colossal, musical comedy extravaganza at its greatest."

General admission is $1 for adults and children, 50 cents to student body card holders and free to Gold Card holders.

Police reduce burglaries through computer system

The Seaside Police Department has been able to reduce burglaries by as much as 22 per cent since 1971 through the use of a sophisticated computer system to predict time and location of such crimes in the city.

The reduction in all types of burglaries falls short of the hoped-for decrease of 50 per cent in burglaries stated as a goal of the three-year exploratory project funded by the California Council on Criminal Justice, but is encouraging enough that representatives of other cities and states have come to learn about the system.

In fact, the dollar savings to the total community through the computerized burglary prediction system have more than paid the $35,000 annual cost for the last three years. Next year, pleased with the success of the program, the city of Seaside will pick up the program and continue it.

The program involves the feeding of burglary statistics into a computer at Monterey Peninsula College for the city of Seaside, where they are integrated with pertinent data on time, date, location, weather, type of items stolen, and other information, and predictions are made daily about what types of burglaries are most likely to occur, and in what parts of the city.

A huge grid network for the entire city has been laid out over a map of Seaside, and the predictions each day correspond with sectors of the city. Thus, a computer printout for a given date night state the grid, time, and nature of probable burglaries (commercial or residential) to give the police a handle on what to expect.

Two full-time police officers are assigned to the computer information, and their schedules each day depend on what sort of prediction comes out of the machine. Thus if the computer predicts a high probability of residential burglaries in a sector of town between the hours of midnight and 5 a.m., then the officers concentrate their patrol in the place and at the time indicated.

The information is also disseminated to the other patrolman, so they can be on the lookout.

In a final report on the three-year program, the Seaside Police Department reports that between 1971 and 1975, the total increase in all kinds of burglaries for Monterey Peninsula cities was 50 per cent. In the same period, the increase in burglaries for Seaside was 28 per cent, indicating a 22 per cent reduction in burglaries attributable to the computerized prediction system.

"The savings to the taxpayer of this reduction amounts to approximately $35,842," the report indicates.

The final report also claims that the predictions were at a level of 56 per cent accuracy during the entire program, and at a higher level of accuracy in the January to August, 1975 period. This contrasts with an expected accuracy of only 10 per cent, had the department relied solely on guesswork.

The initial goal of the project was three-fold: (1) to reduce residential and commercial burglaries through computerized predictions on where, when, and under what conditions they might occur, (2) to assign specially-trained personnel using special equipment and techniques to the areas designated by predictions, (3) and to train para-professional community aides to contact businesses and residences to instruct citizens in home and business security. The third aspect of the program, known as Operation Neighborhood Alert, was funded through the Seaside Police Community Relations Program.

The initial computerization of historical burglary information in Seaside was accomplished with the police personnel and donated resources from the CTB McGraw-Hill Computer Center. To test the effectiveness of the program, for the first four months after the program started in March 1971, computer predictions were used, and for the following two months they were suspended, then reinstituted for the next two months.

"The result was a 4.7 decrease in burglaries during the times the computer predictions were used," the report says. "The times the burglary predictions were not used, the burglary rate increased."

Following that initial effort, federal funding through the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, and through the state from the Council on Criminal Justice, were obtained to continue the project from July 1, 1972 to Sept. 30, 1975.

In addition to the statistics that show the effectiveness of the computerized predictions, some patterns in burglaries emerged from the project. In most years, the burglaries tended to hit peaks in April, June, and October, and the periods between were ones of reduced burglaries.

The report notes also that "1974 and 1975 were the only two years where a consistent decline from January to June is seen in the burglary rate. These two years were the ones during which the more effective predictions were available and a more integrated program was run. This supports the notion that burglary rates in 1974 and 1975 were reduced by the program."

The number of burglary cases cleared from 1972 to 1975 increased by 200 per cent, while the overall increase in burglaries was 19 per cent. "Although there are more actual burglaries in 1975 compared to 1972, the burglars actually are able to steal less merchandise per burglary in dollar amount."

"This may be due to increased community awareness of better prevention methods," the report concludes. "Actual recovery of stolen property was reduced by over 100 per cent. This indicates that better methods of distribution now exist in the community for stolen property, with much of it being 'fenced' outside the area rather than in local pawn shops, as was the case in previous years."

Free. With love from Crocker Bank.

Yours free with a $300 savings deposit. Sunny makes banking bearable—for a change.

You can't buy Sunny the Bear anywhere. You can only get him free. At Crocker.

All you do is put $300 or more in a new or existing savings account at Crocker Bank, and he's yours.

(If you want to open a new Crocker account with money that's now in another bank, just bring us your passbook, and we'll handle the whole transfer for you.)

Sunny is seventeen inches tall. He's warm. He's soft. He's cuddly. He's a safe playmate, too. Made of non-toxic fire-retardant material, with his eyes locked in, and hand-washable.

And he's free. But don't wait. There's just one Sunny to a customer while the supply lasts. Don't you know someone who'd love to have him to love?

Status report due this week on waste water

Metcalf & Eddy Engineers, a consulting firm under contract to the Army Corps of Engineers, will make a status report Thursday on their study of Land Application Treatment for Wastewater Management of the Salinas-Monterey Bay area.

The report will be made at a public workshop sponsored by the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG) and the San Francisco District, Army Corps of Engineers. The workshop will be held in the Community Room of the Monterey City Library, 625 Pacific St., Monterey, Nov. 13, at 7:30 p.m.

The contractors will discuss potential application sites, types of application systems, related quantities of treated wastewater and procedures for evaluating sites. The treated effluent being considered for land application under this contract is that which is generated locally.

The investigation into land application of treated wastewater is being conducted as part of the Corps of Engineers Salinas Basin-Monterey Bay area urban study. This phase of the study is being closely coordinated with the Monterey Peninsula Water Pollution Control Agency's 201 Facilities Plan. The geographic area under consideration extends south from the Monterey County line and includes Castroville, Salinas, Spreckles, Seaside, and the Monterey Peninsula.

Some 12 alternatives, involving regional and subregional land application systems, have been developed for the Salinas-Monterey wastewater flows. Each feasible alternative will be ranked when the study is finalized. At the workshop, four alternatives will be presented in detail. These alternatives call for consolidation of effluent at a regional treatment site near the mouth of the Salinas River.

The workshop sponsors are looking for area-wide reaction to the preliminary alternatives. Interested citizens and agencies are encouraged to attend, to ask questions, and comment on the preliminary alternatives.

that Mrs. Burton remove the arm band, and took her before managing editor Al Cross.

Cross told Mrs. Burton she had three minutes to remove the arm band or leave the premises. Mrs. Burton elected to leave and was told her paycheck would be docked for the 90 minutes remaining in the work day.

A grievance complaint will be filed by The Newspaper Guild's Monterey Unit, of which Mrs. Burton is vice chairman.

Ironically, the company's action requiring Mrs. Burton to leave work fitted in with the objectives of the national demonstration.

Child abuse prevention council

abuse. Parents will always feel angry toward their children at some time or other, but society has trained them not to let their feelings out, and this sometimes aggravates the abuse problem."

Parents Anonymous, which provides anonymity for abusive and formerly abusive parents to discuss their problems and to help each other achieve effective parenting roles, is a valuable support system for parents, Ms. Duff said. A chapter has been formed on the Monterey Peninsula.

Another goal of the child abuse prevention council is to establish a drop-in center for parents who might be on the verge of abusing their children, to give them a respite from domestic pressures and a chance to cool off. The center would operate 13 hours a day, seven days a week. Families would be limited to a certain number of hours per week, in most cases, to prevent the service being turned into a free baby sitting service, Ms. Duff said.

"One of the dangers is in raising the level of awareness of the problem, before there are adequate services available. There are services available now, but there aren't enough yet."

"Parents and children have to re-learn parenting. Parents who tend to be abusive, need to learn how to be dependent again, so they can overcome their abusive behavior," Ms. Duff commented.

"Our society says that there are certain situations where a child deserves a good spanking. But society now needs to examine whether spanking serves any purpose other than making the parent feel better, momentarily."

The council hopes to establish a lap therapist program, in which persons who have been successful, non-abusive parents will help to counsel troubled families, and to provide a healthy role model for abusive parents.

Eventually, a crisis line will be inaugurated, which will be available to any parent who is about to abuse his child, or who wants to talk about things affecting their life at the moment—a kind of instant release valve from the pressures of domestic life.

The money for most of these services will have to come from the community. A lot of what we'll be doing is to get other agencies to provide the services needed," Ms. Duff said.

She emphasized that the whole thrust of the program is to prevent child abuse, and to stop it once it starts, rather than to punish parents.

"It's a non-punitive thing," she stressed. "The last thing protective services (a division of the county social services department) wants to do is to send people to jail; the focus is to help them to deal with their problems."

The 17-year-member board of directors of the council is made up of representatives from the schools, legal aid societies, family service agencies, parents, physicians, and others. It is an all-volunteer board.

"The council would like to have a multi-disciplinary committee set up to study child abuse cases as they arise," Ms. Duff said. "There would be professionals to make recommendations for diagnosis and treatment of the cases."

Such a system has been established already at Fort Ord, where the military has recognized its problems with child abuse and taken steps to correct the situation. Data on child abuse incidence and families involved is transmitted from base to base, to follow the abusive families, to assist in prevention and remediation of abuse.

Four quarter school plan favored

Students, staff and parents who have participated in four quarter schools have voted overwhelming acceptance of their programs.

Four elementary schools schedule the customary 175-180 school days per year in a 45-days-on 15-days-off schedule instead of the conventional plan with a full summer vacation and a six week break in between. In four period of 41 to 48 in addition, one week of each structural days, with three week break is devoted to vacation periods between an "intersession," which each of three weeks in length.

The first four quarter plan periods in September and was for better accommodation December, and for two weeks of students, and improvement during each of the spring of the instructional program.

Concerns which also prompted a plan of this sort were the large number of student transfers in and out of the district, and the loss of learning and social habits over long summer vacations.

Under this plan, school begins in the middle of July and closes at the same time in June as other schools. The summer vacation and a six week break in between is divided into vacation periods between an "intersession," which each of three weeks in length.

Intersession is held one week during the fall vacation periods in September and December, and for two weeks of students, and improvement during each of the spring of the instructional program.

PICTURE BOOK PROGRAM

The Seaside Branch Library announces six weeks of "Picture Book Programs" for pre-schoolers from age three. The programs will be held in the library meeting room: Wednesdays, Nov. 12 to Dec. 17, from 10:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Children should be a minimum of three years old and mothers will be required to remain in the library during the program but will not join the children for the program. Mothers may use this time to get acquainted with our new library and browse leisurely.

Myra Kong, the children's librarian, hopes through the introduction of books to instill an early appreciation for good books and a desire to read. Ms. Kong will be happy to assist mothers in finding appropriate materials for their children and themselves before and after the program.

For further information call the Seaside Branch Library, 899-2055 or come to see us in the City Hall complex, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday to Thursday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

FILM PROGRAM

The Seaside Branch Library invites you to film programs beginning at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 15, in the library meeting room. The films are aimed at and programmed for young people.

Our first program will be of special interest to young people 6th grade and up and will run approximately an hour. The program will begin with a brief introduction to books, old and new, and the following films will be shown.

"Orange and Blue" is an experimental film using color and music to create surprisingly varied moods, as two large balls—one orange and one blue—bounce around the countryside and through a junkyard. Extremely creative and fun.

The second film is "Braverman's condensed cream of Beatles," which followed the Beatles from their early days in Liverpool to the height of their popularity.

For further information call the Seaside Branch Library, 899-2055.

PANETTA RECEPTION

The Panetta for Congress Committee will hold a campaign kickoff reception for candidate Leon Panetta at 2 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 16.

Panetta, who is seeking the Democratic nomination from the 16 Congressional District to challenge incumbent Republican Burt L. Talcott, will meet and talk with citizens and supporters from the four counties of the district.

The reception will be held at the Panetta home, 15 Panetta Rd., Carmel Valley. Information about the reception can be obtained by calling 372-0318 or 659-4069.

AUDUBON PROGRAM MEETING

Thursday, Nov. 13, at 8 p.m. is the date of the next general meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society at Canterbury Woods Auditorium, 651 Sinex Ave., Pacific Grove.

John Olmsted, biologist and environmental educator from Sausalito will speak on "The Beginnings of a Transcontinental Ecosystem: Linear Park." The slide lecture shows a spring walk across California by a naturalist and photographer with a prologue in Cape Mendocino and with an epilogue at the Rocky Mountain crest.

SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY FIELD TRIP

The annual field trip to the Los Banos wildlife areas has been changed to Saturday, Nov. 22, by the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society.

All are welcome to join the day outing to see migratory waterbirds wintering in the San Joaquin Valley Grasslands water district. Make arrangements for cars, meeting places, sharing expenses with leader Charley Pilk, 372-2672, 10760 El Canino Nuevo, Monterey.

Sandhill cranes, white faced glossy ibis, ducks and geese in large numbers are expected to be viewed. Last year's trip report included 67 species out of a possible 200 and vast numbers of snow geese.

The federal and state management areas are a refuge for many waterbirds and were established not only for preservation of a wet habitat and for control of hunting, but to protect farmers from onslaughts of hungry birds.

Twirl Club launches fund-raiser sale

The Dance and Twirl Club endorsed by the Seaside Park and Recreation Department, will launch their Tenth Annual Fund Raising Candy Sale on Nov. 15.

The club has more than 6,000 boxes of Stuckey's Pecan Log Rolls to sell by Dec. 6 to finance the purchase of uniforms, accessories, purchase drums for the Club's Drum Corps and provide transportation for out-of-town parades. The girls represent the Monterey Peninsula in parades, shows and competitions in Northern California.

Club members from five to 15 years will be calling on residents in the area who will have the opportunity to support the club's only fund raising project as well as buy candy appropriate for Christmas giving.

The girls will be receiving prizes for their efforts with the one-week scholarship to twirling camp in Santa Cruz being awarded to the girl who sells the most candy, according to director Jennie England. Parent Chairmen include Mrs. Jack L. Seal and Mrs. Patrick Carmichael of Monterey.

MPC students win awards for journalism

Two Monterey Peninsula College journalism students won writing awards at the annual conference of the Northern California Journalism Association of Community Colleges held recently at Ohlone College in Fremont.

Michael Gardner of Marina was awarded first place in news writing for a story he wrote for the student newspaper, El Yanqui, regarding alleged sex discrimination charges brought by MPC art instructor

Andrea Spark. The story was published in the Oct. 3 edition. Gardner is managing editor of the student newspaper. Holmgren said there were 48 entries in the news writing competition. Dave Maurer of Monterey was given honorable mention in the future writing category for his first-person account of being tried and sent to jail for not paying a fine. The story was published last April 18.

Dinner for

Charlie Knight

The Filipino employees of the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District are sponsoring a dinner meeting to honor Charlie Mae Knight, director of special projects in the district, for her leadership and her special contributions to minorities in the district.

Festivities will be held at the Fort Ord Officers Club on Friday, Nov. 14, beginning at 6:30 p.m. with dinner scheduled at 7 p.m. Featured speaker will be James C. Harrison, Superintendent of MPUSD.

Students show concern

Quick action, citizenship and concern all came into play Saturday on King Junior High's campus.

Seven King students—Patricia Delaney, Vickie Olden, Juliet Pickens, Majorie Angelle, Carol Pryor, Terry Fallor and Karen Miller—were attending a Cobra cheerleading practice session on King's football field. The students detected smoke coming from a locker. They immediately began taking steps to extinguish the fire. They alerted the fire department and contacted the principal of the school while continuously making an effort to extinguish the fire.

The actions of these young ladies were instrumental in preventing any major damage. A King salute to these seven young ladies.

Children's artwork preserved

Whatever happens to all those wonderful works of art children bring home for mother to save? Somehow, they just seem to turn into piles of paper which eventually get lost. Now, however, some of the artistic efforts of youngsters can be preserved "forever" as unusual and treasured Christmas gifts through a special "Small Fry Originals" program, now being offered by Eureka Federal Savings.

Parents are invited to bring their children to any Eureka Federal Savings office where the youngsters may draw with color markers on specially treated paper. Through a unique process, the drawings are then transferred permanently to heavy duty, dinner-size plastic plates which can survive all the rigors of the dishwasher, machine or human.

To guarantee delivery by Christmas, all drawings must be sent by EFS to the "Small Fry Originals" processor by no later than November 15, so parents are urged to bring their "Young Picasso's" to EFS offices before Friday afternoon, Nov. 14, where they will find "little artists corners" set up with desk, the special paper and color markers.

The cost of the "Small Fry Original" plates is $1.35 each - only one plate can be made from a single drawing - just the cost of the actual processing and handling.

MYSTIC MOON

ASTRO - FUN - OLOGY

Nov. 13-19

EXUBERANT ARIES March 21 - April 20: Youth will be giving you moments of concern...take the advice of a professional in trying to settle any problem regarding them...it will be well worth it.

DETERMINED TAURUS April 21 - May 21: Opposition is now giving you the opportunity to pull all "chestnuts" out of the fire...in the past timing has been one of the errors of your scheduling...NOW is the time to rearrange this habit and sail through successfully.

VERSATILE GEMINI May 22 - June 21: Pushiness, regarding finances, will not enhance you with many; slow down and use "taste" in your pursuits. Rest is also on the agenda for you...nervous energy may be forcing you "on" but it also may throw you down for a needed rest.

EXOTIC MOON CHILD June 22 - July 23: Career activities may be at a standstill...try not to allow a negative mood to claim on to you...react mentally and not emotionally and you'll be in the driver's seat and not the passenger's.

REGAL LEO July 24 - August 23: Any legal moves will be best handled by paying attention to one who knows the problem...pay a bit now for advice rather than wishing you had. Events in the home base will be giving you moments of personal pride, why not?

DISCRIMINATING VIRGO August 24 - Sept. 23: Opportunities to enhance the Pocketbook will be giving you the choice of which one and why that one. Females may be offering you moments of decision making...they mean well but you have to take a stand for your own sake and future - they really don't know all sides of the "story."

ELEGANT LIBRA Sept. 24 - Oct. 23: Stop trying to run ahead while standing on your own feet...this is very frustrating...get out of the picture, if possible, and look at it as if you were a stranger to the situation...what else is new?

SENSUAL SCORPIO Oct. 24 - Nov. 22: Quick changes of actions and reasons for same will be giving your acquaintances moment of concern for your well being...events, known only to you, will be the cause of this sudden change...hold on, they'll come around by your charms.

EXPANSIVE SAGITTARIUS Nov. 23 - Dec. 21: Uncalled for events will be popping up out of the "woodwork" - look ahead for your own course of action...others will try to tie themselves in on your future looking plans. Remember you and you alone are on the move; take others if you care to, but it ain't necessary.

ZEALOUS CAPRICORN Dec. 22 - Jan. 20: Watch the timing in your activities...accidents, for you, appear to be on the forward move...others are involved with their own motivation and oblivious to you - watch machinery with sharp edges while working with or around it.

EXTRAORDINARY AQUARIUS Jan. 21 - Feb. 19: Partners in all areas of your life will be offering the opportunity for you to take a good look at your procrastinations...people do not feel secure when you are unable or won't make a decision...do look into this situation.

MYSTERIOUS PISCES Feb. 20 - March 21: Females in all walks of your life will be affording you the opportunity of close personal introspection...look deeply, for these people are trying, in their own way, to tell you something; listen.

On Thursday, the 4th day of December, 1975, at ten o'clock a.m., in the lobby of the office of Coast Counties Land Title Company, 439 Tyler Street, in the City of Monterey, County of Monterey, State of California,
THE FIRST MONTEREY
COMPANY, a California corporation, as Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, in lawful money of the United States, the following described real property situated in the County of Monterey, State of California, and bounded and described as follows, to-wit:
Lots Numbered 483 and 485, in Block 7, as said lots and Block are shown on that certain map entitled, "Map No. 3 of DEL
MONTE HEIGHTS, being a Re-
Subdivision of Blocks 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 and Reservation, Villa Subdivision of Lots 2 & 3 of the Noche Buena Rancho Monterey County, Calif.," filed for record January 8, 1909 in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Monterey, State of California, in Volume 2 of Maps,
"Cities and Towns", at page 12.
Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances, to satisfy the obligations secured by, and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in a certain Deed of Trust, executed by BERNARD
MILLER and SUSIE BELL
MILLER, his wife, as Trustors, to THE FIRST MONTEREY
COMPANY, a California corporation, as Trustee, for the benefit and security of MON-TEREY SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION, a California corporation, dated April 28, 1970, and recorded April 30, 1970, in Reel 648, at Page 969, Series 09837, Official Records of Monterey County, California.

Notice of Default of said obligation and election to sell said real property was recorded in the office of the County Recorder of said Monterey County on the 6th day of August, 1975, in Reel 994, at Page 384, of Official Records of Monterey County, California, Series 26735.
Nothing has been paid on account of the principal or interest on said loan subsequent to the filing of said Notice of Default.
This notice is given in compliance with the written application heretofore made on the Trustee by the said Beneficiary.
The owner and holder of the promissory note and the indebtedness secured by said Deed of Trust, or any other person may purchase at said sale.

A certified check or bank draft, payable to the order of the Redevelopment Agency of the City of Seaside, negotiable U.S.
Government Bonds (at par value), or a satisfactory Bid Bond executed by the bidder and an acceptable surety, in an amount equal to five percent (5 percent) of the total bid for the construction of: Barnminator
Installation and Control House Modifications in connection therewith, shall be submitted with each bid.

Attention is called to the fact that, not less than the minimum salaries and wages as set forth in the contract documents must be paid on this project, and that the contractor must ensure that employees and applicants for employment are not discriminated against because of their race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.

The Redevelopment Agency of the City of Seaside reserves the right to reject any or all bids or to waive any informalities in the bidding. Bids may be held by the Redevelopment Agency for a period not to exceed thirty days

Department of Social Services responds to needs of people

By VICKI SHEPARD

Social Services is to respond to the daily living and functioning problems which confront residents of this community. The Department of Social Services promotes, provides, and uses trained social workers and other social service agencies to reduce family and individual problems for those who will accept services and for those who are in danger of being exploited, abused, or neglected. The Department of Social Services is organized into a number of "task clusters" of service staff. The task units focus on specific defined populations in the community. This method of service provides for the creative use of available staff and a variety of practice techniques or approaches to a problem. In addition, it helps to identify individuals and families needing help, the types of problems a community has, and helps to establish priorities for dealing with problems.

Some of these task units were outlined in a precious article. However, the Department of Social Services also provides the following under the Adult Protection Continuum:

Crisis Intervention: provides needed support and resources to individuals to maintain independent living and to protect against exploitation, dietary deficiencies, economic ruin, and physical and mental deterioration. When necessary, it arranges for guardianship, conservatorship, or alternative community care.

In Home Task Unit: Home-maker services provided to aged and disabled persons who need help in order to remain in their own homes. Care is given by home-makers employed by the County and private providers who are paid with county and state funds. Their services include performance of necessary household tasks, essential shopping, preparation of meals, personal care such as bathing and dressing and supervision for the individual's safety. The department is actively looking for people to work as private providers.

Out of Home Care: License residential care facilities for adults and the aged, and to assist operators in providing needed recreation and life enriching facilities for the residents. They work to return people home when possible.

Other services offered for children and the family include:

-Information and referral, to give answers to inquiries, assess individual needs, and assist clients with those needs by making referrals within the social services department or to other agencies.

-Out-of-home children's task unit, which provides 24-hour foster home and day care homes to provide safe and healthy care homes to provide safe and healthy care for children in full-time placement or day care placement. This service also provides supportive and consultative services directly to foster and day care parents, to insure that they assist the child in emotional and physical growth.

-Adoptions task force, which assists the department in planning for each child who needs to have a permanent, stable family of his own. The unit also has responsibility for step-parent adoptions.

-Family planning unit, to give counseling to persons in the area of prevention of pregnancy and problem pregnancies. Workers route persons to available health clinics within the county for medical care, and work within the health department.

Volunteer Services: The department contracts with three agencies to provide volunteer services (transportation, home repairs, babysitting, etc.) to all recipients.

The Department of Social Services realizes that problems do not always occur between office hours. Therefore, a social worker is available after hours on weekends should an emergency service problem arise. Individuals should call county communications to reach the social worker.

Funds for the department are obtained from state, county and federal governments. It is the federal money from Title 20 of the Social Security Act, which the public meeting at 7 p.m., Nov. 13, at Martin Luther King Jr. High School concerns. The fixed amount of approximately $975,000 is involved for the administration of services for the county this year.
